- Former site leaders, facility managers and safety professionals who can apply lessons learned to assist clients in achieving faster results
- Practice leaders and principal consultants who can integrate the talents and specialties of subject-matter experts for larger, enterprise-wide engagements
- Subject-matter experts and visionary leaders, many of whom have provided thought-provoking presentations at ORCHSE Network meetings
- A variety of HSE experts with CSP, CIH, PE, Ergonomics, and other certifications appropriate to organizational needs as well as lawyers, doctors, and licensed health care professionals who specialize in worker safety, health and environmental issues are on call
- Academic and human performance professionals
- Training professionals, including leadership and management coaches experienced in improving team performance

MEMBER SUPPORT

ORCHSE Network members have used our consulting services for many years, and have participated in a large number of network meetings, seminars, working groups and dedicated research projects.

Our consulting services are designed to fill the general needs of a large population of U.S. and multinational corporations. In further developing our consulting solutions, our members continue to provide meaningful recommendations for future consulting services and consulting areas of expertise. Therefore, we benefit immensely if our members:

- Advise us of present and future consulting needs; we can then develop capabilities, tools, and attract the needed consulting resources.
- Provide open and honest feedback on the responsiveness and quality of consulting services; like you, we are dedicated to continuous improvement.
- Recommend top-notch consultants who have provided exemplary service; consultants that may be ideal for providing services to other members.
- Participate in ORCHSE Networks-sponsored working groups and consulting pilot projects; we look to member companies to implement and test new approaches.
